Guest Speakers

Samuel Johnson was eight years old when he fled the Liberian civil war. After eight years in a refugee camp, he was resettled in Georgia. In 2015 he founded My Vision for Refugees and built an orphanage in N'zérékoré, Guinea. In August 2020 he received the annual Friend of Freedom Award from New American Pathways refugee resettlement agency in Atlanta. A 2013 Mercer alumnus, Johnson received his degree in French, Women and Gender Studies, Political Science, and International Affairs.

Lizbeth De La Cruz Santana is a cultural worker and interdisciplinary qualitative Latinx public scholar specializing in contemporary migration processes. Her current research project examines childhood arrival migrants to the United States. She focuses on digital storytelling, testimonial literature, and diaspora studies. She received her PhD from the University of California, Davis, and holds a degree in Latin American Literatures and Cultures with a designated emphasis on Human Rights. In 2023, she began her career as an Assistant Professor in Chicano/a/x Studies at the Weissman School of Arts and Sciences, Black and Latino Studies Department at Baruch College.

Marcelo Hernandez Castillo is the author of Children of the Land: a Memoir; Cenzontle, which was the winner of the A. Poulin, Jr. prize; and Dulce, winner of the Drinking Gourd Prize. He is a founding member of the UndocuPoets, which eliminated citizenship requirements from all major poetry book prizes in the U.S, and was recognized with the Barnes and Noble Writers for Writers award. He was the first undocumented student to graduate from the Helen Zell Writers Program at the University of Michigan. He teaches in the creative writing program at St. Mary's University, and the Ashland Low-Res MFA Program, as well as poetry workshops for incarcerated youth in Northern California as the Yuba and Sutter County poet laureate.
